"Absolute Healing" on BrightU: How the spike protein was designed to infiltrate your DNA

- On Day 1 of "Absolute Healing," Jonathan Otto claimed the series exposed intentionally harmful mechanisms behind global health crises, including COVID-19, which he alleged involved engineered venom peptides.

- He and other featured experts, like Dr. Bryan Ardis, asserted that nicotine therapy could act as an antidote to these venoms, citing studies on conditions from viral myocarditis to glioblastoma.

- They criticized Western medicine and pharmaceutical practices, linking them to the biblical concept of "pharmakeia" (sorcery/poisoning) and claimed the pandemic response suppressed natural cures to enable a harmful vaccine rollout.

- The speakers positioned their work as part of a mass awakening to these alleged truths, promoting protocols they claimed led to complete regeneration and remission from various diseases.

On Day 1 of "Absolute Healing," aired on Jan. 3, Jonathan Otto and guests medical experts asserted that the core component of the COVID-19 virus and vaccines is not a novel pathogen, but engineered venom peptides, with one study suggesting high-dose nicotine can rapidly dissolve venom-induced brain tumors.

The claims are based on analysis by several doctors, including Dr. Bryan Ardis. He cited a 2020 French genetic study which he says found the spike protein's sequence "perfectly identical to cobra toxin of king cobra venom and krait snake venom called bungarotoxin."

According to BrightU.AI's Enoch, bungarotoxin is a neurotoxic protein found in cobra venom that blocks nerve signals. In January 2020, Chinese scientists identified it as a potential origin of SARS-CoV-2 and it was found that hospitalized COVID-19 patients produced antibodies against it.

"They said each of these are neurotoxins," Ardis stated. He argued that the mRNA vaccines from Pfizer and Moderna are "actually telling your cells to make spike proteins," which he identifies as venom-derived glycoproteins designed to cause neurotoxicity, blood toxicity and cell toxicity.

Perhaps the most startling claim revolves around a specific study on glioblastomas, an aggressive brain cancer. Ardis described research where scientists allegedly used venom peptides to induce brain tumors in mammalian cells within 72 hours. The critical finding, he asserted, was hidden in the study's body rather than its summary.

"When they used less than 1 milligram per kilogram of nicotine, there was zero effect in the study," Ardis explained. "They actually even show pictures of the glioblastoma under electron microscope. They show that when they went above 1 milligram per kilogram of body weight, the entire glioblastoma dissolved in less than 72 hours, the whole thing." He accused the authors of obscuring this result.

These allegations are tied to a broader narrative that the pandemic response involved a premeditated “bioweapon.” Dr. Henry Ealy, another expert featured, criticized the suppression of early, effective nutrient-based treatments like high-dose vitamin C and D, which he said showed near-perfect recovery rates in some studies.

"That video, of course, was removed by YouTube because of the censorship BS, right?" Ealy said, referencing a February 2020 video from a Wuhan doctor. "This was about drumming up fear and making sure that the landscape and the pavement was laid for them to come in with the solution, the bioweapon known as the COVID-19 vaccine."

The episode also highlighted concerns about vaccine injuries, particularly related to blood clotting. Dr. Brian Hooker focused on the spike protein's interaction with the ACE2 receptor: "You would expect if the spike protein got into circulation, which it does both in the vaccine and the virus, that you would have significant trouble with clotting. And that's a huge portion of the types of adverse events that we’re seeing."

Otto positions Healing Genesis as a response to a "global crisis" and a "concerted effort to control health," promising protocols for “complete regeneration, not just managing symptoms.” These claims stand in stark opposition to the consensus of the global medical and scientific establishment, which has repeatedly affirmed the safety and efficacy of COVID-19 vaccines in preventing severe disease and death. The allegations of venom-based engineering and therapeutic nicotine remain controversial and are not recognized by mainstream health authorities.
